SOCIAL CHATTER AND HOME TALK

VERY IMPRESSIVE was Miss Edith Spaulding's marriage to Lieut. M. M. Garrett, U. S. A., on Wednesday evening, and the friends who filled St. Andrew's went away agreeing that it was one of the prettiest weddings of the season. It was essentially a military affair, and the United States Army officers in their full dress uniforms made a brilliant showing and occupied prominent seats. Society was well represented, most handsomely arrayed, the preponderance of pretty girls being very much remarked. Promptly at half-past eight seated forth the triumphant strains of Mendelssohn's March played magnificently by Professor Rudland Bode. The choir entered the nave singing a hymn, and immediately the bridal party proceeded up the aisle, everybody turning to look at pretty little Helena Spaulding, the dainty flower-girl, who led the way accompanied by Vernon Tenney, who wore an old-world page's costume and looked every inch to the manner born, both bearing flowers. The lovely bridesmaids, sisters of the bride, the Misses Ethel and Alice Spaulding, came next, dressed in white mull, Directoire style, embroidered in white rosebuds over a pink silk underlip; on their heads were wreaths of pink rosebuds caught with pink tulle, and they carried shower bouquets of pink rosebuds. After them came Miss Constance Restarick, the maid-of-honor, exquisitely dressed in pink silk made with a Directoire sack, and most becoming to her sweet, fragile beauty. She also carried a bouquet of pink roses and then came the beautiful bride leaning upon the arm of her father, Mr. E. I. Spaulding, in her gorgeous dress of rich white Duchesse satin trimmed with old rose needle-point lace, the gift of a relative, and made a la Directoire. Fine quillings of the satin outlined the skirt on either side, and the shirred sleeves ended in a frill of the old-point. The becoming veil was held by a spray of red orange blossoms, and her only jewel was a pearl sunburst, the gift of the groom. She carried an ivory prayer-book. The groom and his best man, Lieut. John S. McCleary, 20th Infantry, U. S. A., met the bridal party at the chancel steps, where the interesting ceremony was performed by Bishop Henry Bond Restarick in a most solemn manner. During the signing of the register the choir sang softly and sweetly. When the bridal party were leaving the chancel the Wedding March from Lohengrin was effectively played, and the guests had a good chance to look at the bride and her attendants. All the girls were blonde, which was rather remarkable and unusually pretty. It was a perfect wedding, planned and carried out with the exquisite taste for which the Spauldings are noted. There was a small reception and supper at the Spaulding residence on Punahou street, confined to the bridal party, including Bishop and Mrs. Restarick. The ushers included Lieut. Randolph, Lieut. Arthur M. Shipp, Lieut. Alexander Chilton, and Lieut. George C. Bowen. Fairy fingers transformed the nave, altar, and chancel into a veritable bower of loveliness. There were sprays of delicate maidenhair in great luxuriance, and on the altar were vases of tall Ascension lilies, pink carnations, being massed in graceful profusion, while baskets of roses were tied with pink tulle. Everything expressed youth and beauty and happiness. The decorations were the artistic handiwork of Mrs. Edward Tenney, Miss Mary Catton, and Miss Ryecroft. The supper at the Spauldings was a very delightful affair, four tables being set in the dining-room and decorated with baskets of pink roses and tulle. The cake was cut by the bride with the groom's sword. Many toasts and speeches made the minutes fly. Mrs. Spaulding wore a handsome frock of ashes of violets, elaborately trimmed with a panel of rare lace. The bodice was outlined with lace. Her ornaments were diamonds.

The presents were on view in the second drawing-room. They were numerous and costly, including a large chest of silver, silver toilet sets, a set of silver finger bowls, Chinese silver tray and smaller ones, vases of silver, cut glass, and china; dinner services of Canton china; gold vanity box; pitchers; tea-cloths (12) serviettes; linen; cake baskets of silver; bon-bon dishes; silver cake-plate and a dozen plates to match; silver bread-plates; a set of flat silver; embroideries; jewels; necklaces of jade and gold; purses and cases; and innumerable others, including a substantial check and old rose-point lace. Dainty boxes of cake were given each guest.

Lieut. and Mrs. Garrett are spending the honeymoon at Maunawili, the country place of the William Irvins, relatives of the bride, and later they will proceed to Fort William Harrison, where Lieut. Garrett is stationed.

Hamlet, "Grand Aria d'Ophelia" To Be Given By Madame Arral Tonight
Hamlet, "Grand Aria d'Ophelia":
Aria—Andante.
Of your joyous games, my friends
Will you allow me the courtesy
to take a part?
No one knows where I am!
Slipped away from the palace
At time of morning lark.
Just as the Sun God ope'd his eye!

Recit.—
With the tears of the night
Earth is wet and damp;
And the morning lark,
Before the day breaks,
Mounts in the heavens,
Softly rising, lightly falling,
As a feather in its flight.
But why do you whisper low?
Do you not know me?
Hamlet is my beloved,
And I, I am Ophelia!
A sweet oath ties us!
He gave me his heart
In exchange for mine own;
And if some one tells
That he trifles and forgets me,
Never believe them. No, never!

No, no! Hamlet is my affianced,
And I, I am Ophelia!

Recit.—
If he breaks faith
I will lose my reason!
Will you divide my flowers?
To you, that pretty branch
Of wild rosemary:
To you, that dainty blossom.
And now, listen to my song!

Pale and fair, sleeping under the water deep
The willis reflecting the fire
In the night, deep in the blue lake!
Happy the wife in the arms of the husband.
My soul is jealous
Of an happiness so sweet!
Nymphs, mirror of fire,
Alas! you sleep under the waters,
Under the waters of the blue lake.

The siren passes you entrancing,
Under the blue of the sleeping lake.
The air veils her in a misty cloud.
Adieu, white star, adieu,
Sweet friend, adieu, adieu!
Under the waves sleeping
Forever, forever, adieu, adieu!
Adieu, dear husband!
Adieu, my lover!
Sweet vows, tender faiths,
Happiness supreme,
Adieu!

Cruel, you see my tears!
Ah, for thee I die!
For thee I die, I die,

Adieu!

Mrs. Herman Focke sailed in the Mongolia most unexpectedly owing to a cable telling of the illness of Mrs. Neumann, her mother, in Mexico.

Dr. and Mrs. Brinckerhoff have returned from their visit at Waiolua, and Mrs. Brinckerhoff's health is much benefited by the change.

Harry Lyon Engaged

Harry Lyon is very favorably known here and Admiral and Mrs. Lyon were very popular during their stay in Honolulu.
"An engagement of interest in service and social circles here is that of Harry Lyon, Jr., and Miss Hazel Schulerberg of San Diego. The news was informally made known to their intimate friends a few days ago but owing to the recent tragic death of Miss Schulerberg's father, who was a prominent resident of the southern city, the announcement was a very quiet one, and the wedding will not take place for at least a year. Mr. Lyon is the only son of Admiral Henry Ware Lyon, who commanded at Mare Island last year, and Mrs. Lyon. The Lyons, who are now in their country home in Maine, made many warm friends here and entertained extensively while they lived at the navy yard. Their son, who is connected with the merchant service, suffered very serious injuries in an accident on shipboard three months ago and has since been staying with the Schulerbergs in San Diego. After his marriage he and his bride will make their home in this city. — Call.

His Announcement

A celebrated violinist, who visited Honolulu not so very long ago, announced the birth of a son and heir in the following clever verses on a postal card written to a society woman here:

When she said, "It's a boy, sir, and weighs ten pounds net,
I just gasped for breath and am gasping yet.
But, slowly regaining my wits by degrees,
Am rocking my boy on my weak, shaky knees.
Just think of the joys of spending hot nights
In a two-by-four closet without any lights.
Where baby can yell to its heart's content
Without any fear of a raise in the rent!
In perfect rhythm with the wavy motions,
Artificially created by fatherly notions,—

But such is my lot in this land of the free,

And therefore we're planning to move to Paree,
And willing to cross the big pond in a hearse.
If we only can find there a competent nurse.

Before we depart, though, for foreign lands
With friends in Hawaii we should like to shake hands—
But "Diamond Head," "Punchbowl," and "Waikiki beach,"
Although from this town within easy reach,
Would prove no attraction until we could meet
The ——— at their ancient country seat.

"Niniko," the Nuunuu Valley country place of Mr. and Mrs. Frederic Lowrey, was the scene of an al fresco supper on Saturday last in honor of Miss Ethelinda Schaefer and Mr. Alfred Castle, whose engagement was recently announced. The table was placed under the koa trees which so abundantly adorn the grounds, and was fern-covered, making a cool and delightful effect. Happy faces and much laughter prevailed throughout the meal, which was most informal. Previous to the supper, games were played and in the evening there was dancing. Those present included Mrs. C. M. Cooke, Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Cooke, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Cooke, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Cooke, Mr. and Mrs. A. Lewis; Misses Linda Schaefer, Irmingard Schaefer, Elsie Schaefer, Beatrice Castle, Alice Cooke, Catherine Goodale, Vera Damon, Alice Hedemann, Alice Macfarlane, Helen Macfarlane, Mary Macfarlane, Katherine Smith, Lorna Laukea, Jessie Kennedy, Wilhelmina Tenney, Irene Fisher, Genevieve Langton, Helen Achilles, Ella Wight, Nora Swanzy, Harriet Young, Margaret Peterson, Beissie Hopper, Margaret Castle, Julia Damon, Cordelia Walker, Eleanor Waterhouse, Marion Waterhouse, Margaret Waterhouse; Messrs. Alfred Castle, George Fuller, Gustave Schaefer, Ehrilng Hedemann, Howard Hedemann, Carl Hedemann, Harold Castle, Sam Walker, William Walker, Alexander Walker, Guy Macfarlane, Herbert Dowsett, George Brown, Webb Beggs, Dan Cramer, Derwent Kennedy, George Renton, Lewis Renton, Walter Ryecroft, W. L. Castle, Spencer Bowen, Achilles (2), Gullford Whitney, Hyde-Smith, Theodore Cooke, Allison Jordan, Harold Giffard, Harold Spencer, Rene Hoguet, Sherwood Lowrey, Frederick Lowrey, Walter Love.

An engagement of especial interest in Navy circles is that of Lieut. Ernest Friedrich to Miss Mabel Claire Southard. Lieut. Friedrich is the commander of the torpedo boat Hopkins, one of the mosquito fleet that accompanied the battleships from the Atlantic to the Pacific, and is now lying at the Mare Island navy yard. Miss Southard is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Southard of Baldwin, Long Island, N. Y. When Lieut. Friedrich slipped away a few weeks ago on a vacation trip to the East, it was surmised by his friends that it was a pilgrimage of sentiment. Yesterday he returned to Mare Island and announced his engagement to Miss Southard, with whose family he spent his vacation.

Among those who departed in the Alameda were Mr. and Mrs. C. Hedemann and Miss Alice Hedemann. There were nearly thirty people down to see them off and Miss Hedemann was covered with leis her mother also was much bedecked with the offerings of her friends. They expect to return in three months' time.

Mrs. James Judd, who was operated upon for appendicitis at the Queen's Hospital, is doing so well that she has been removed to her home in Prospect street. Miss Waterhouse, who is also at the Queen's for the same trouble, is doing very well. Both young women will soon be going about again.

Colonel and Mrs. Parker, with their little adopted daughter, Kaani, have gone to the Volcano for a three weeks' visit. The Princess Kawananakoa expects to go abroad in January for a year's trip.

Mrs. Vincent Kiteat, who has been on Kauai for a few weeks, returned on Wednesday and is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Allan Herbert.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT VISITING CAMP OF TROOP C. IN GOVERNMENT WHITE STEAMER.

When President Roosevelt pays a visit to the encampment of a squadron of cavalry situated within a few miles of his home it might be expected that he would travel on horseback. But as a matter of fact when he went to inspect the summer camp of Troop C. at Huntington, L. I., last week he travelled in the government White Steamer. There can be little doubt that the President is gradually coming to like the automobile almost as much as he does horses—at least he uses the one quite as much as the other. Every Sunday, for example, he rides with his family to church in the government auto, in this way not only publicly displaying his conversion to automobilism, but also placing the seal of his approval on the growing custom of going to church in a car, concerning the propriety of which there has been some doubt in conservative quarters.
